focus

Your life through a lens.

Dear members and budding photographers, time to train those roving eyes and exercise those fingers once again, because the ARC FOCUS Photo Competition has returned for a second year.

Thanks to the fun we had last year with our first FOCUS competition and the inspirational entries we received, we thought we'd revisit the world of shutters and apertures and find out what exciting things you've all been up to.

As before, we're looking for your help in promoting positive images of people with a learning disability - images that we can use to illustrate the good practice that our membership organisations continue to carry out across the UK.

This year, to help fire your flashes and ignite your imagination, we'd like you to focus on the following categories for inspiration: Employment, Transition, Training and Older People. WOW us with your insights and you could be on your way to winning one of four £25 prizes.

Entry is open to all - with photos from people with a learning disability, staff, friends and relatives and organisations providing a service all welcome. Final judging is expected to take place at the ARC Annual Conference in November, where short-listed entries from each category will be on display.

All formats are accepted but we'd prefer if entries were in a digital format, as we can't return any printed photos. These can be emailed to Nic Pattison, our Information Officer, at nic.pattison@arcuk.org.uk. Closing deadline for the competition is 30th September 2009.

So, what are you waiting for, bring a smile to our faces.
Good luck!
